Risk Warning

Risks are associated with the kinds of investment that are outlined on this website. Your capital will be put at risk if you decide to invest. Previous performances are not a guarantee of future performances. The value of assets has the potential to decrease as well as increase and they can potentially be affected by a variety of variables, for example changes in interest rates. An investor might not get back the amount they originally invested. An investor might not receive any income distributions, an example being dividends. A large number of the investment opportunities are illiquid (it mightn't be possible to sell the investment immediately or without significant loss in value) and longer-term investment horizons might be involved.

This website is provided solely for informative purposes and it doesn't constitute any offers, investments, legal, taxes or any other advice nor is it to be relied on when making investment decisions.

Information within it has been taken from sources deemed by Fintech Invest to be trustworthy but no warranty is provided that such information is entirely accurate or complete and it shouldn't be relied upon as that. Fintech Invest won't be deemed responsible for any damage or loss of any description which arises, directly or indirectly, and happens from the use of any section of the information given.

The investment opportunities we provide are available only to persons qualifying or legal entities defined by the local regulator and on the basis that you aren't subject to jurisdictional restrictions preventing access to any of the information provided on this website.

Fintech Invest doesn't give advice on the investments it offers, and it only promotes to the class of investors who are capable of making serious investment decisions independently. If you feel you are in need of advice, we suggest that you speak to an independent financial adviser.

Investments made via Fintech Invest aren't covered by the Financial Services Compensation Scheme.

Some of the investment opportunities involve mini bonds. Mini bonds aren't deposit based or capital protected, and your investment is at risk of loss. Such bonds are high risk, illiquid and, as with other investments we promote, are not covered by the Financial Services Compensation Scheme. Interest rates on bonds such as these are not comparable to those of bank savings accounts and bonds of this nature can't be redeemed until reaching maturity. Mini bonds are referred to as non-readily realisable securities, this means you might have to hold them until maturity. Your capital might also be at risk and you could not get back everything that you've invested. If you don't understand the risks, we suggest you speak to an independent financial adviser.

Past performance isn't a guide to future performance and predictions are not a reliable indication of potential future performances. The value of investments and the money brought in from them might drop as well as go up and might be affected by alterations in interest rates, and you might not get back the same value as your original investment. Investments that aren't conducted in home currency may work against you. We don't give investment advice or make any suggestions regarding the viability or how appropriate these products are. These financial promotions are communicated by Fintech Invest.
